On the 16th of May, the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences are having a showcase all about the new modules that are coming out in September this year. We're going to take a look at the level 2, 3 and post-graduate modules. And the module chairs are going to give you an introduction to those modules and talk a little bit about the assessment and what makes them really exciting.

It would be great to attend the event if you're thinking about choosing one of those modules that are new or if you're just interested in arts and the social sciences and are keen to find out more, it's a great opportunity to meet academics from the Open University, and of course, talk to other students. The student hub live is an online, interactive event that anyone can participate in and everyone is welcome. I'm looking forward to seeing you on the 16th of May.
